COMMENTARY

During October the fund rose 0.3% while the benchmark (1 month US LIBOR) rose 0.1% and the Citigroup World Government Bond Index (WGBI) fell 0.5%.

The October ECB meeting was the main event of the month. Mr. Draghi will be pleased he managed to announce the first phase of tapering of asset purchases without upsetting the stability in the bond markets. The Euro also weakened slightly, probably reflecting the fact that asset purchases remain open ended. Money markets expect no rise in Euro interest rates until 2019 at the earliest. As a result Bund yields have drifted back from their recent highs but the ongoing surprising strength of the European economy including cycle low unemployment and PMIs at their highs, suggest to us that risks to bond prices remain on the downside. Interestingly the events in Catalonia have had very little effect on the bond markets.

The global financial markets continue in a 'risk-on' mood with economic sentiment riding high, equity markets at all-time highs and volatility at all-time lows. But policy makers continue to be extremely cautious in their moves towards tighter policy. The latest example of this was in the UK where rates were increased for the first time in 10 years on 2nd November but with a message designed to keep interest rate jitters under wraps. Meanwhile UK CPI is at 3.0%, above the 2% target, and unemployment is at a 40 year low of 4.3%.

Whilst a patient approach to monetary tightening probably makes sense, the degree to which policy makers are prepared to err on the upside (on inflation) means that bond investors should be building in an inflation risk premium. With real yields in negative territory in most developed markets we see very little evidence of that and so remain negative duration in the fund.
